Varig's Boeing 707 to Havana.

As soon as the plane landed, I saw Brazilian President Goulart's ~~representative~~ representative. . . . to Cuba (to offer his good offices to me & Castro).

The Soviet Ambassador came to see me on the first day (Tuesday, Oct 30).

(a tense young man ^{disheveled gray hair} — he wants to buy a car — the Soviet General commander the missile installation — who was rather outside — young & dressed in heavy threads — ^{— hidden pistol —} Spanish & little — some years in Latin America —)

Castro would be delighted to have UN inspection if the UN would inspect the American bases rising Cuba + preparing aggression.

Three plus hours in Hawaii Embassy district (how?)

There were saboteurs anti-aircraft emplacement along the drive a man in tattered dress was waving in the cars - one American destroyer just beyond three-mile territorial waters off Cuba.

rifles slung on their shoulders
militiamen for militiamen on the streets

A group of nilium unloaded fourteen boxes + crates from a truck. I was not aware there was an amount of equipment had been crated + put aboard.

Piled up inside the garage (to be released on the plane when I left)

The general services dept felt it would be quite a savings to load all the equipment ^{needed} aboard the plane (with no extra ^{expense}).
